Bay Council president arrested; charges dropped

By ELLIS CUEVAS
Bay St. Louis Council President James Thriffley was arrested this week after an affidavit was filed in

Sports Bulletin

U.S. CHAMPIONSHIPS
St. Stanislaus has been selected as site of the 1979 Amateur Athletic Union Senior National Weightlifting Meet August 18 and 19, according to SSC Weightlifting Coach Brother Bennett. The meet is considered the AAU's U.S. Championship and is second only to the World Meet. See story on page B-1 of today's Echo.

Hancock County District Five Justice Court alleging "conflict of interest." Thriffley was released immediately on his own recognizance, according to Justice Court Judge William M. Frisbie.

A warrant for Thriffley's arrest was issued by Frisbie and served on Thriffley at Frisbie's office by District Five Constable Willie Carbonette about 5 p.m. Monday.

Frisbie said the warrant was based on an affidavit alleging "conflict of interest" on Thriffley's part by former Bay St. Louis City Accountant Robert Bienvenu.

Some 30 minutes after Thriffley's arrest, Bienvenu reappeared at Frisbie's office and asked to withdraw the affidavit.

The judge said he accepted Bienvenu's request to withdraw the affidavit and immediately dropped the charges against the Council president.

Bienvenu was employed by the City of Bay St. Louis as a part-time accountant from 1951 through 1969 and worked full-time for the City from 1969 until his retirement in 1978.

"I had second thoughts and decided to withdraw my statement Monday. I didn't realize I was filing an affidavit against Mr. James Thriffley. I was just verifying that he was a Bay St. Louis elected official and also employed by Treutel Insurance Agency on October 1, 1977," Bienvenu said Wednesday.

The affidavit said in part:

"Before me W.M. Frisbie a Justice Court Judge of the said County, Robert Bienvenu makes oath that James Cornelius Thriffley III, on or about the 9th day of April, 1979, and prior thereto, of said County, did unlawfully act as an elected city official of the City of Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, while an employee of Treutel Insurance Agency, Inc. since October 1, 1977, a company doing business with said city, (21-38-1) against the peace and dignity of the State of Mississippi. (Signed) Robert Bienvenu.

"Sworn and subscribed before me, the 9th day of April, 1979. (Signed) Wm. M. Frisbie, Justice Court Judge..."

Concerning his arrest, Thriffley said, "Mr. Frisbie called me on the telephone trying to locate me so the summons could be served. I told him that since I was right down the street, I would walk over to his office."

Thriffley added, "I walked over to Mr. Frisbie's office and Mr. Willie Carbonette gave me the summons."

Justice Court Judge Frisbie said, "The councilman was immediately released on his own recognizance."

"This was about 5 p.m. and about 30 minutes later Mr. Bienvenu returned to my office and requested the charges be dropped and the affidavit withdrawn," Frisbie explained.

Step toward collective bargaining

Teachers, parents call for Policy 18 revision

By RICH ADAMS
Spokesmen for the North Bay Elementary Parent-Teacher Organization and two local teacher unions this week demanded a revision of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District's controversial Policy 18.

PTO President Lana Noonan and Andrews Wilkinson, president of Bay St. Louis Local, Mississippi Federation of Teachers, jointly presented a revised version of the policy which Ms. Noonan claims is an "effort to establish and maintain the proper flow of communication" between citizens and the school board.

Following that presentation, Sue Sonier, representing the Bay St. Louis unit of the Mississippi Association of Educators, addressed the board and also demanded a policy revision.

In Noonan's presentation, she based her revision demands on the "fundamental philosophy of the American Constitutional form of representative government," and claimed action of the board is "public business and shall be conducted at open meetings in such a manner as to encourage the active contributions of the parents and taxpayers of this school district."

n and c ntributions of the parents and taxpayers of this school district."

Noonan continued, asking citizens be allowed to present directly to the board problems which cannot be solved by school administrators.

"She asked the board to respond to 'problems or recommendations of taxpayers...no later than the next meeting.'"

Noonan further asked that the board conduct open meetings "at least quarterly," not utilizing a pre-arranged agenda.

"The only business conducted will be impromptu input of citizens concerning educational and financial matters of the system," Noonan said. "At least one of these meetings will be conducted as a budget hearing at which the proposed budget will be presented to the citizens and the citizens will be invited to comment and offer recommendations within the premises (at that time)," she added.

Noonan also stipulated that all meetings must be open "except when the matter involves a personal matter which the citizen himself would prefer to discuss in an executive session."

"In no case will the meeting be closed to the public by executive session when the subject matter involves the expenditure of public funds except for determining the amount of a competitive bid by the board for the purchase of equipment," Noonan said.

She added minutes of such executive sessions to determine bids must be made public after those bids are submitted.

Noonan also demanded notice of special meetings be presented to the public and news media prior to those meetings, preferably a 24 hour notice.

"This policy is established to assure a mutually beneficial relationship between the Board of Trustees of the Bay St. Louis Municipal Separate School District and the citizens they represent; and above all, to enhance the quality of education provided for the children of our community."

Wilkinson then spoke to the board, requesting the policy be amended to allow teacher organizations to speak on matters involving hours, wages, and working conditions.

The present policy prohibits teacher organizations from discussing such matters, apparently in an attempt to avoid collective bargaining.

He asked the presentations be expanded to include "matters which are not resolved to the satisfaction of the teacher or teacher organization within the administrative chain of command; matters which concern those subjects which, by law, are reserved to the authority of the board of trustees, adding that teachers or teachers organizations may be placed on the board's agenda by request to the board secretary or president with a copy supplied to the district superintendent and any subordinate administrator concerned."

Wilkinson then explained he is not requesting negotiation and collective bargaining "at this time," merely asking that teachers or teacher organizations be allowed to make recommendations to the board.

"When we get into exclusive recognition and negotiation, then we are into collective bargaining," he said. "Although, as a union, collective bargaining is our ultimate goal, and, in our opinion, would greatly accelerate improvement in the quality of education in our district, we doubt that enough teachers in this district are ready for the total commitment that collective bargaining entails," he continued.

He said the request is intended only to "open communication between teacher organizations and the school board."

Wilkinson called for a "master salary schedule" to be established to prevent individual salary negotiations between the administration and teachers, which he claims is presently practiced in the school system.

"wages and hours for many teachers are negotiated individually between the teacher and his principal or the superintendent," Wilkinson said.

"For the last two years, teachers have requested such a (master salary schedule) be prepared, approved by the board, and published for the benefit of all personnel in the system," he continued.

"If all salary schedules, including the many special supplements, were authorized and published by the board, there would not be any need for individual negotiation on salaries," he added.

"This is as it should be...salary should be paid on the basis of work performed, not on the basis of who is the best bargainer. The public is entitled to know what its employees are paid," the MFT president continued. "The present system involving individual bargaining is unhealthy in that

Bay youth sentenced to 8 years

By RICH ADAMS
A 21-year-old Bay St. Louis youth, claiming he was "under the influence of the devil," pleaded guilty to a burglary charge in Hancock County Circuit Court Monday and was sentenced to eight years in the state penitentiary.

John Legier, carrying a large Bible as he entered the courtroom, pleaded guilty to the burglary charge before Circuit Court Judge Leslie B. Grant.

He and an accomplice, allegedly entered a home in Bay St. Louis and threatened Mrs. John Williams with a length of pipe.

The two then allegedly stole a watch and necklace, valued at $30.

When asked by Judge Grant if he committed the crime and was guilty, Legier replied "I am guilty."

Grant asked District Attorney Albert Necaise for a recommendation.

"The defendant has a prior record as a juvenile. This is a serious crime, but the victim was not harmed," Necaise told the judge.

"I recommend the defendant be sentenced to eight years in the state penitentiary," Necaise added.

Judge Grant then asked Defense Attorney A.J. Caranna for recommendations.

Caranna emphasized that Legier is young, and added his juvenile record has been clean for some time.

"Since the crime, the defendant has sought diligently to find work and try to get away from criminal environments. He has been extremely cooperative," the attorney said.

HNC students consider transferring

By LESLIE WILLIAMS
Some Hancock North Central students are considering transferring to another school district or attending private schools to escape the looming possibility they will be banned from competing in inter-school activities, such as football and band.

Hancock North Central Principal Thad Haskins said Monday, "Our students have very strong feelings about not being able to participate in inter-school competition—some of them have mentioned transferring to another school district or a private school so they can compete with other schools."

Haskins' comments on the student fears follow Saturday's announcement of a decision by the Accreditation Committee of the State Department of Education to place the Hancock North Central Attendance Center (grades 1-12) on probation and to drop the school from its accredited list if deficiencies are not corrected by June 30.

Superintendent Terrell Randolph has disclosed the School Board does not have enough funds to correct the deficiencies cited, and loss of accreditation seems imminent if the it leads to distrust, envy, favoritism, and centralization of power in the hands of the one who assumes the role or is given the authority to fix salaries," he charged.

Wilkinson said salary recommendations for members of a teacher group should be accepted by the board, as the board already accepts such input from administrators.

"Perhaps this explains why the teachers in our district are currently $422 below the average paid by municipal separate districts in the state and $296 below the average paid by municipal school districts on the Gulf Coast," Wilkinson said.

"And this illustrates why teacher organizations should be allowed to recommend to the board wage schedules for their members, for, if they don't, who will," he added.

Wilkinson also requested a schedule of coach's supplement salaries should be posted and become part of his proposed master salary schedule.

"Last, but by no means least, are the non-certified personnel of the district, office workers, cafeteria workers, janitors, and maintenance men. Spokesmen should be allowed to present wage recommendations on behalf of these individuals," Wilkinson said.

In his closing, the MFT president discussed exclusive rights by one of the two teacher organizations at the school to represent teachers before the board.

He said the MFT understands that the MEA, which he refers to as "the other union in the district," believes it has the exclusive rights to represent teachers because it has a larger membership than the MFT.

"If (the MEA) proposes an election to elect a bargaining agent for all the teachers for the purpose of negotiating a master contract between the teachers and the board, we will wholeheartedly endorse its recommendation if certain provisions are met," he explained.

"However, if their proposal should envisage anything less than the negotiation of a contract, then we would neither accept nor abide by the results of such an election," Wilkinson added.

"For then the purpose of the election would be for representation and not collective bargaining. That would be analogous to the U.S. Congress deciding that because there are more Democrats than Republicans, the Republicans should not be allowed to represent any of the citizens," he explained.

"At that time, the concept of democracy would cease to exist," Wilkinson concluded.

The board was asked by President Virginia Gex if it had any questions or comments concerning the presentation, but the board members remained mute.

Sue Sonier, president of the Bay St. Louis Association of Educators then demanded a revision of the policy, calling present modes of communication "back-door methods."

She said she represented the 86 members of the teachers organization.

"We know we have communicated with you, the trustees, however, this communication has been through what we refer to as the 'back-door method.' We know this is not a professional or ethical manner for teachers to communicate with board members," Sonier said.

"It leads to discontent, criticism, and misunderstandings among teachers, administrators, board members, and the community," she continued.

"The channels of communications for the adjustment of problems and grievances have been well planned and it is not our intention to circumvent these channels when problems or grievances arise," Sonier added.

"However, these same channels inhibit and block the expression of ideas which can improve the educational system within the district," she explained.

Sonier said a teacher group spokesman who could freely present ideas and answer questions at board meetings "would provide for a better educational system and freer communication within the school district."

"Concerns of teachers in the district center on such things as: extra work which is not presented to you, the school board; lack of inservice programs, such as a workshop on classroom discipline; a discipline policy which was conceived and written without classroom teacher input; budget and expenditures, particularly in the area of classroom instructional materials; and other areas," Sonier said.

Sonier then accused the school board of discrimination against teacher groups.

"The teachers of this district are currently being discriminated against. You have granted to the administrators the permission, without loss of pay and their expenses, to attend professional meetings," Sonier said.

"However, if a teacher representing the faculty of this district attends such a meeting, that teacher must pay for a substitute and pay his own expenses," she complained.

Sonier told the board she understands the policy, if revised, will open the way to collective bargaining.

"I can assure you at this point in time we are not asking for this. We do feel the teachers should be able to discuss with the board such things as salary, fringe benefits, and, particularly, working conditions, since these affect the students we serve everyday," she said.

After Sonier's presentation, Board Member James Ginn asked how the proposed policy would differ from the present rules.

Sonier said that an open meeting would allow teachers present to air their ideas and answer questions.

"Who better knows grouping, scheduling, and instructional needs than teachers," Sonier said.

Board Attorney Lucien Gex asked Sonier if her intent was to be able to address the board without going through administrators and the superintendent, often referred to as the "chain of command."

Gex questioned the legality of the organizations being able to freely discuss working conditions and wages with the board.

"We may have to listen to 200 individual teachers complain about the same thing. We will have listened to 200 teachers, but we also will have gone through channels."

Wilkinson said all he is asking for is constitutional rights.

"We are guaranteed the right to freedom of assembly and freedom of speech; this is all we are asking. We have been here mentioning the unmentionables—wages, hours, and working conditions. If we have a teacher organization, we have to discuss working conditions," Wilkinson said.

"We are not proposing a salary increase tonight. We have more important issues to discuss and that is why we want the ear of the board," he continued.

"We are a union...that is a bad word in Mississippi. We are an educational union and encourage education. That is our main area of interest. We are not strike-happy," he added.

Board Member Walter Turcotte cut in on the discussion and moved to close discussion and go on to other business, but the motion died for lack of a second.

Judy Barrett, a teacher in the Bay system, asked Gex to define working conditions.

The attorney said all grievances concerning working conditions will be discussed on the merits of the individual cases.

Mrs. Gex then thanked the three speakers and said all matters discussed will be taken under advisement.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS A special program on the Library of Congress can be seen at 12:30 p.m., Saturday April 14, on the Mississippi ETV Network - written and hosted by Sir Huw Weldon, former head of BBC Television. "The Library of Congress" provides viewers with a sampling of the library's services and resources. As pointed out by the Librarians of Congress, Dr. Daniel J. Boorstin, the library's primary function is as a research center for the U.S. Congress. During the course of the 90-minute program, Sens. Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.) and Edward Kennedy (D-Mass.) are seen availing themselves of this service, as is Henry Kissinger. The motion pictures, photographs and rare book collection are introduced, as is the Julliard String Quartet, performing on rare and historic instruments presented to the library expressly for performance in public concerts there.

MITCHELL ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY

Harry D. Mitchell has announced his candidacy for the office of state senator of the 31st District, which covers Pearl River and Hancock counties in the election to be held Aug. 7.

Mitchell, a resident of Picayune for 10 years, is 46 and is married to Audrey Sammie Mitchell. They have 10 children. Mitchell is a marine diver with J. Ray McDermott.

In announcing his candidacy, Mitchell said he intends to "re-establish some basic concepts to the office of State Senator, first and foremost being the function of the office to serve the people."

"As far as I'm concerned," he said, "a man who studies to be a lawyer is perfectly suited to practice law but not in a political environment."

"Perhaps I'm old-fashioned," Mitchell said, "but I feel public office should be sacred. In order for it to be effective, it must be free from outside influence, favor-trading and cozy relationships between business and government."

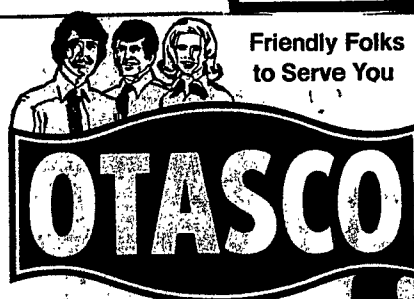

"As a State Senator, I'll make it a point to send out a regular newsletter to keep the people in touch with what's taking place in Jackson," he said. "I'm a firm believer in the value of close, one on one, eye to eye contact with constituents. I think this has been missing in our country."

"I'll admit it," Mitchell said, "I'm extremely impatient with the red tape of government processes and the length of time it takes between citizen complaints and bureaucratic action. I believe that impatience will be of help in the office of state senator and help keep me attuned to how the people feel about their lawmaking machinery."

"I understand their frustration because I feel it myself," he said. "As far as I'm concerned, a state senator is largely in charge of a big complaint department."

"It's true that I'll be involved in a statewide legislating process but my first thoughts are going to be how does it affect and how can it benefit my constituents."

Who will tell the kids?

Who'll tell the kids? Will it be the school board members, political leaders, school teachers or parents who were not in favor of the recent bond issues for the Hancock County School System that they have lost accreditation.

The Accreditation Committee of the State Department of Education, in a letter on March 29, 1979, has placed Hancock North Central's grades 1-12 on probation and will drop the school from its accredited list if deficiencies are not corrected by June 30, 1979.

We at the Echo appealed to the qualified electors prior to the precious bond issues to forget politics and think of our children and vote for the needed improvements in the County School System.

The few political leaders and parents against the bond issues worked overtime to convince the 41 percent of voters needed to defeat the proposals of the wisdom of that choice.

Graduates of Hancock North Central will have to take special entrance examinations to gain admittance to many colleges and universities if accreditation is lost. The entrance examinations are only required of students from schools without accreditation.

Now, we wonder who will it be that will tell the baseball, basketball, football and track teams and even band members of the county schools these activities will be dropped if accreditation is lost - a consequence which seems now to be a certainty.

We wonder how many graduates of Hancock North Central and the old Kiln, Dedaux and Sellers Schools who received athletic scholarships to college would not have been able to go to college without that help.

And how many of them now have children attending the county school system who might not have an opportunity for athletic scholarships?

Who will tell the girl's basketball team, 1979 Class A. State Champions, they may not even have one competitive game, much less have an opportunity to defend the title through district playoffs, etc.

Who will tell the football players the sport has to be dropped after fielding the best teams in the school's history during the past three seasons.

The juniors and seniors next year in the band have participated for the past six or seven years - will the opponents of the bond issues tell them there will be no more band?

If accreditation is lost for several years, how long will it take to rebuild these programs? It took about 15 years to build a football program.

Many of you will say the basketball team was state champions the first year of Hancock North Central's existence. Well, that fact is true, but, you must also realize that it was a combination of three high school basketball programs when consolidated at Hancock North Central which produced that winning team.

When the loss accreditation at Hancock North Central becomes effective on June 30, 1979, and it seems very possible, we would like to know who is going to tell the kids!

Watch that speed!

The playgrounds are humming with the arrival of such pretty weather. All types of activities such as baseball, basketball, tennis, etc. are attracting many of our youngsters.

The playgrounds have signs telling us to reduce speed, yet many of us seem to ignore them. The Bay and Waveland Police are keeping a close watch for speeders around the play areas and we are sure glad they are doing so.

Youngsters have a tendency at times to scoot across the road chasing a ball without looking, and that is the big reason for speed reduction in playground areas.

Sometimes we fail to realize the fact that we were young ourselves, and we did the same things the young of today do without thinking.

Spring and summer is fun time for our youth. Let them enjoy themselves, and do our part in helping them become adults one day like us.

We are sure that some of us will get ticketed before the summer is over for speeding in a playground area. We can all avoid being ticketed by noting the speed reduction signs.

Bicycles are plentiful this time of year, so let us all keep a sharp eye out for the young riding our streets.

The youth can do their part too by observing rules and regulations of proper bike riding.

We, as adults must teach our children proper bicycle riding procedures. If we do not know the correct procedures, the Bay or Waveland Police will be happy to tell us.

Let all our children have a happy spring and summer.

HNC students...

necessary funds are not somehow attained.

"It has gotten to the point where it's necessary to ask voters in the district for a bond issue once again to solve the problems," insisted Haskins.

Beat Three Supervisor Oscar Peterson, who opposed a recently defeated bond issue proposal to finance construction of a special education center, a junior-senior high school south of I-10 and classrooms and other buildings at HNC, said this week he has not discussed the possible accreditation loss with school officials nor yet read newspaper accounts of the State Department of Education action.

When asked whether he thought a bond issue was now necessary to save the school district's accreditation, Peterson said, "I have no comment until I read the paper tonight."

Haskins also suggested inviting the public to HNC for a first-hand look at overcrowding at the school.

He also emphasized an open-house was held previously and very few residents from the district attended.

"We've got to have some type of construction, split sessions or either implement a quarter system to save our accreditation," the principal warned.

Haskins explained split sessions would allow a regulated number of students enrolled at HNC to attend school during the day, and the remaining students attend school during the afternoon.

The quarter system, said Haskins, would require groups of HNC's students to alternately attend school in 45-day increments.

"Unless we pass a bond issue, implement split sessions, or implement the quarter system we will lose our accreditation," Haskins reiterated.

"The biggest problem with HNC is that all these make-shift classrooms are not meeting accreditation regulations—we need facilities," entreated Haskins.

"Classrooms are terribly overcrowded, enrollment is increasing as it has been since 1974, yet the people in our school district will not accept that these problems exist," he continued.

"Our kids will suffer in the long run—they'll be the one's who will suffer," lamented Haskins.

Bay St. Louis gets early nod on sewer grant

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett received word Monday from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) that the City has received a pre-application award of a $189,000 grant for sewer facilities within the four-street area of deMottuzin, State, St. John and Easterbrook.

The City is also the first alternate choice for an $80,000 grant for water facilities in the 500 block of the four streets.

Ronnie Murray of the Gulf Regional Planning Commission and Federal Programs Coordinator for the Bay, submitted the proposal on January 29. The City had two public hearings on the project in early January.

Murray said the next step will be for the City to prepare final application. The full application deadline is June 15, 1979 according to Murray and two more public hearings must be held before then.

Bay St. Louis received a similar grant in 1978 for $277,000 which will provide sewer and water facilities in the 500 block of Washington, Sycamore and Kellar Streets.

Mosquitos coming soon

By RICH ADAMS

Most Gulf Coast residents spent the winter months itching for spring with its flowers, sunny days and warm temperatures.

But now that the mild weather is here, the itching takes on a new dimension—the result of gnats which have reached a peak in population during the rainy months of March and April.

According to Cary Crosby, director of the Harrison County Mosquito Control

LETTERS

To The Editor

Seeking identities of good Samaritans

April 9, 1979

To The Editor:
The Sea Coast Echo

Dear Editor:

Will you please place the following in your Thursday paper—

I want to thank again the two gentlemen who put out the fire in the engine of my orange VW in front of the Plaza Hut in Bay St. Louis on April 2nd.

If it had not been for their quick thinking and action, using their fire extinguisher which they had in their car I would not have a car to drive around in to-day.

I was so shook up and nervous I did not even get their names. If they see this letter or if anyone knows their identity will they please get in touch with me. (I am listed in the Waveland phone book.)

I would like to replace their cars with new fire extinguishers. They may need it to help themselves or someone else some day again.

I had a fire extinguisher in my car but by the time I got it out they had already done a good job.

After trying out my fire extinguisher I found it had little pressure left in it and I will have to replace it also.

I would like to ask everyone to please have a fire extinguisher in their car. You may never know when you will need it for yourself or someone else and I know they will be as grateful as I am.

Lauds reception given Tiger Band

Hon. and Mrs. Larry Bennett
Parents and Friends of Tiger
Pride Band Members

As co-chairman and publicity chairman of the Tiger Pride Band-Aides, we would like to take this opportunity to thank all of you for the reception given to the Tiger Pride Band when they returned from Jackson after the State Contest on April 1.

Naturally, as parents of band members we were thrilled with this reception, and the band was very proud of the number of parents and friends who met us, and also proud of Mayor and Mrs. Bennett taking time to also meet us with one of the fire trucks and the police cars that escorted us through the City from the Waveland Resort Inn.

We would also like to take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Becky Godwin and Mrs. Cathy Ladner for arranging this reception, and for the signs that were displayed along the route which gave the band members an extra boost.

We especially want to thank Glen Page, Carolyn Hamilton and Alfred Shepherd for the hard work and time which they gave for extra rehearsals and practice, which helped the band attain their superior and excellent ratings in Jackson.

A special thanks also to the Pizza Hut and Frostop for their "Good Luck Tiger Pride" signs which were displayed on Saturday when the band left for Jackson.

We think that the Tiger Pride Band did a tremendous job of representing Bay Senior High School, the City of Bay St. Louis, their band director and assistant band directors, and last, but not least, their parents.

Congratulations, Tiger Pride, to us you will always be "Number One."

Award winner shares honors

April 6, 1979

Mrs. Paul O. McCormick, Pres.
Friends of the Library
City-County Public Library
Bay St. Louis

Dear Judy:

Although I cannot think of anything I did to deserve it, I am most appreciative of the recent award given in the Crawford Memorial Room of the Library on Wednesday.

"Friend of the Year" is a pleasant sounding title which I would like to share with all those lovely and outgoing people who have made contributions through me to the various library projects such as articles for the display case, memorial books, records for the children's library, gifts and holiday decorations.

Perhaps it would be more appropriate to remember, 1978, as "The Year of the Friends," and I would like to add your officers, members of the library staff and members at large of the Friends of the Library.

These people have done much to stimulate interest in our lovely cultural center - a source of pride to our community.

I thank you for this recognition.
Sincerely,
Joe Pilet

Spring means flowers, love, sun...and gnats

Commission, the gnat population reaches a one-to-two-month peak in the spring, with a lesser attack of the small insects occurring in the fall.

Crosby said the warming trend of March and April along with rainy conditions are ideal for gnats, but added that hotter days which come as summer greets the Coast will bring an end to the gnat problem.

A spokesman for the Hancock County Health Department said that office has not received any major influx of patients complaining of gnat stings and infection, but added local private physicians may be treating such cases.

Some residents have reported severe itching, swellings and some infections resulting from gnat bites.

A spokesman for the commission said that department is fogging areas from which it receives resident complaints of gnat infestation, but added the fogging is somewhat ineffective, killing only those insects which come in direct contact with the pesticide.

The spokesman said both trucks and hand foggers are being used to destroy the gnats.

Crosby said mosquitoes will follow the pesky gnats in the summer, but he could not estimate the 1979 mosquito population.

"It varies. In 1977 the Coast experienced one of the worst invasions of mosquitoes. We anticipated a high egg population in 1978, but it just did not happen," Crosby said.

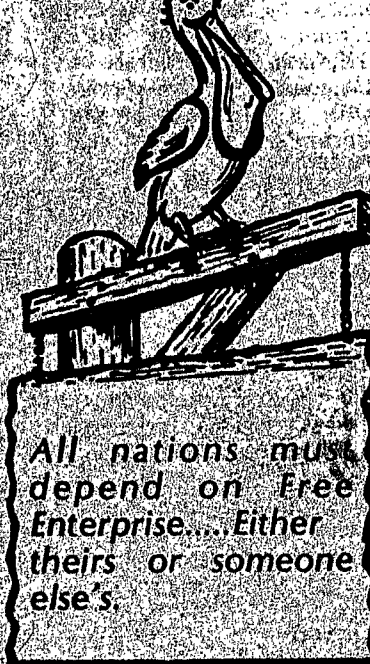

"If all depends on weather conditions. If the days get warm and all other conditions are right, we can expect a large population of mosquitos," he added.

Studies are presently being conducted in the tri-county area of Hancock, Harrison, and Jackson Counties by the commission to determine the extent of mosquito breeding.

Ditches and marshy areas are included in the study, and if mosquito eggs are discovered, they are being sprayed with diesel oil in an attempt to kill the larvae, a spokesman for the commission said.

Save the Bay decision reversed; data said 'ridiculous'

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Robert Smith, an attorney for Save the Bay, describes as "ridiculous" affidavits and exhibits submitted to Federal District Judge Harold Cox by defense attorneys in a case involving the environmental effects of a 13.5 mile rail spur to DuPont's Delisle plant which will have on 22,000 acres surrounding the spur.

Following a conference Friday with attorneys representing defendants and Save the Bay in which additional information such as affidavits and exhibits were submitted by DuPont and other defendants, Cox ruled Tuesday no additional environmental impact statement is needed on the railroad spur.

Cox's ruling apparently reverses an opinion given March 23, granting a preliminary injunction that required federal defendants in the case to prepare an environmental impact statement within 20 days.

Save the Bay is seeking the elimination of potential industrial development of 22,000 acres surrounding the spur. Save the Bay also contends no environmental impact statement assessing the secondary effects of the spur has been done, Smith states.

Some defendants in the case include the Harrison County Development Commission, Harrison County Board of Supervisors, Southern Mississippi Transportation Company, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, Interstate Commerce Commission and the U.S. Coast Guard.

Harrison County Development Commission Attorney Stanford Morse Friday submitted to Judge Cox additional information, including affidavits and exhibits from other defense attorneys.

Smith Wednesday refuted those affidavits and exhibits which included: —An affidavit from Dupont that it would suffer daily damages of about $30,000 if construction on the rail spur, and the resulting delay in the plant's operation, were halted.

Smith says, "This is probably true, but they have trucks as an alternative to rail transportation." He also explained that DuPont has stated chlorine gas can not be transported by truck, but he believes a truck can be designed to solve this problem, and the alternative of pumping the chlorine in by pipe should be considered.

—An affidavit from Harrison County Development Commission Director Perry Wingo that "to his knowledge, there has never been a fertilizer plant considered as a prospect for this area" and that no industry was planned for this area.

Smith says, "This statement is directly refuted in the Interstate Commerce Commission's environmental impact statement which states a fertilizer company is contemplating location in the area of the spur."

—An affidavit from Development Commission engineer Joe Brown "that if Harrison County ever attempted to develop the 20,000 acres, it would cost in excess of $153 million."

"So what," exclaims Smith, "Industrial companies would develop the area not Harrison County, and industrial companies have money and can select the site." "Besides they (industrial companies) locate on a piecemeal basis, they're not going to come and develop 20,000 acres all at once."

—An exhibit by DuPont of the 20,000 acres, that showed "there is very little acreage available for development... about 2,000-3,000 acres... because of land uses of other types out there, mostly residential."

Smith contends, "This is flatly incorrect, Stanford Morse, an attorney for the Harrison County Development Commission at an earlier hearing showed the potential development of the entire 20,000 acres."

In addition, Cox's ruling delivered Tuesday and signed April 6, prohibits the Harrison County Board of Supervisors from "participating in, assisting in, or in any manner encouraging or allowing" rails to be built to the spur from "paper mills, rendering plants or fertilizer plants."

Public hearings must be held, according to Judge Cox, before supervisors will be allowed to issue permits for other industries which may locate along the spur to tie into the line.

Smith said this in effect makes the Harrison County Board of Supervisors the environmental watchdogs.

"I can not see the Harrison County Board of Supervisors acting as effective watchdogs. If they don't think DuPont is a nuisance—then what is a nuisance," complained Smith.

Smith explained Save the Bay will appeal Cox's latest decision on the grounds that an environmental impact statement assessing the secondary effects has not been made.

Save the Bay's meeting was cancelled Tuesday night because a quorum of 20 members was not present.

But, Julian Byrne, president of the environmental group, who along with several others who did arrive for the meeting, said, he also does not believe the Harrison County Board of Supervisors can be an effective watchdog.

The charges against Thriffiley were "dismissed at the request of the prosecuting witness," the judge reported.

Docket entries in Judge Frisbie's office attest to the above sequence of events.

Councilman Thriffiley reported Wednesday, "I thought everything was done in a very courteous manner by Mr. Frisbie and Mr. Carbonette, they were very courteous to me."

"I fully realize that Mr. Bob was grossly misled and I hold no animosity towards the gentlemen," the Councilman said.

When asked about the Monday events, Mayor Larry Bennett said, "No comment."

Thriffiley said he has also been pleased with the professionalism of the media in handling his "current dilemma," but he expressed dismay over the actions of the Mississippi

Agriculture and Farm Network which raised the issue of an alleged conflict of interest on his part from Jackson last week.

Thriffiley said he was not contacted by that network prior to broadcasts last week on radio stations in the state alluding to the conflict of interest.

Motivation for that network's actions on the matter at this time remains a mystery.

Bay City Attorney Joseph Gex said telephone conversations he has had with the State attorney general's office indicate that office has received a request for an opinion on Thriffiley's alleged conflict of interest from Bennett, but as yet has not received such a request from Thriffiley.

"I was going to write for an opinion but since the mayor and councilman have written, I don't feel there is any need for a third letter," Gex added.

The judge then asked Legier if he had anything to say on his own behalf.

"I was under the influence of the devil," Legier said.

Judge Grant then called the district attorney's recommended sentence "merciful" and sentenced the youth to eight years in prison.

As Legier left the courtroom, he carried the Bible in one hand and pointed to the sky with the other.

In other court action Monday, Long Beach Attorney Richard Yarborough asked for continuances of cases involving rape and peeping tom charges.

A trial involving a rape charge against Fritz Garcia was continued, and another involving peeping tom charges against Perry Feigel was also postponed.

Both trials will be heard in the July Circuit Court term.

In another case, Mike Barnishing, charged with burglary, failed to appear at the courthouse for his trial.

Barnishing's attorney, Nicholas Haas, said the defendant's mother could not locate her son.

Haas added that Barnishing will be located and brought to trial prior to the end of the April court term.

Judge Grant ordered Barnishing to forfeit $5,300 in bond.

OTASCO PRESENTS VISA MASTERCARD

LEGISLATIVE PAGES - Serving as pages in the 1979 Mississippi Legislature were Gina Seymore, left, and Hope Chiniche, right, both of Bay St. Louis. The two took time out from their duties to visit Governor Cliff Finch, seated. Hancock County representative J. P. Compretta sponsored the two local students during their one-week stay in Jackson.

Compretta submits report on Legislature's activities

(Editor's note: State Representative J. P. Compretta of Hancock County has submitted the following report on the 1979 State Legislative Session compiled by the staff of the House of Representatives. Compretta said additional reports will follow.)

The 1979 Legislature focused major attention on improving government efficiency and curtailing the growth of state government by limiting revenues available for funding the general operations of the state. To this end, the Legislature considered over 2600 bills and 300 resolutions. Over 500 bills were passed.

By providing for programs and practices which will modernize the operations of state government and help curtail runaway costs, the 1979 Legislature was able to enact a major tax cut which will remove the average family, teacher and state employee from paying state income taxes and will further lighten the tax burden on all families in the state by removing the sales tax from prescription drugs and residential water sales. Furthermore, the 1979 Legislature provides for future tax cut which will serve as a limitation on state expenditures thus forcing a continued review of the programs and functions of all state agencies in the delivery of services to the people.

To improve government efficiency and control the costs of state government, the 1979 Legislature:

1. passed the timely deposit bill which mandates the prompt investment of the state's idle funds, allowing the state to gain an additional $3 million to $7 million in interest during the next fiscal year and decreases the need for borrowing money to run the general operations of the state.
2. establish a statewide personnel system to standardize personnel practices in all state agencies in order to save time and confusion.
3. overrode the Governor's veto of the 1978 Sunset Act which provides review of the purposes and programs of 70 state agencies, boards and commissions, including agencies to make them more efficient and to minimize the number of state regulations and red tape for the consumer.

4. combined the health planning and certification functions of three state agencies into a single agency, the Mississippi Health Care Commission, which is the single most important step toward the containment of spiraling health costs in the state.
5. mandated an annual study to determine the employee need of each state agency with some recommendation as to the amount of money needed for employee costs to deliver the agency's services.
6. cut the cost of state government for the next year by deleting funds for 500 employee positions, deleted 75 percent of the attrition funds, limited out of state travel funds to one-half of the amount spent in 1978 and reduced expenditures for contractual services, commodities, capital outlay and equipment to an amount between 50 percent to 95 percent inclusive of the 1978 expenditures.

Faulty communication styles bring depression, loneliness

(Editor's note-Following is the first in a series of articles appearing exclusively in the Sea Coast Echo by Dr. Catherine Lundy of Waveland, staff psychologist at the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center in Gulfport. Topic requests may be submitted to Dr. Lundy in care of Mrs. Renee Hamm at the Center, 4514 Old Pass Road, Gulfport, 39501)

By DR. CATHERINE LUNDY

Individuals assume many roles during the course of daily living. In a single day, an adult woman may take on the role of teacher at school, wife and mother at home, and daughter to her own parents. Despite the diversity of roles that every person plays, psychologists have found that most individuals develop a characteristic style of communication as they live out their various roles.

Some styles of communication lend themselves to constructive, emotionally rewarding interactions with others. Other patterns, termed dysfunctional block self-expression and prevent expressiveness in others.

Prolonged use of ineffective communication styles leaves a person frustrated and feeling cut off. Depression, anxiety, feelings of aloneness and an inability to cope are often seen in ineffective communication.

Virginia Satir, a renowned family therapist and communications expert, has identified four dysfunctional styles of communication which are commonly observed within family systems and groups. These styles are termed: placater, blamer, irrelevant, and superreasonable.

The placater is a person who organizes his own life around pleasing others. A placater is generally a person with low self-esteem whose self-worth depends upon others' praise and recognition.

Therefore, the placater feels that he must avoid conflict at all costs and can only get his needs met indirectly. The placater often makes statements such as "Don't mind me, I'm not important," or "Whatever you want is fine."

The placater makes others feel guilty and self-serving by his remarks. In fact, that is the only way a placater thinks he can get what he wants.

In the end, the placater winds up used and unappreciated as do the people who must deal with the placater.

To avoid feeling used, the placater often withdraws from the others and becomes a lonely, disappointed person.

The blamer person generally organizes his life experiences around avoidance of personal responsibility and risk-taking. The blamer must always be right and can't tolerate weaknesses or mistakes in others. The blamer is full of anger and self-indignation at others' demands.

He is generally a person with low self-esteem. The blamer is delighted to take credit when things go right, but determined not to take credit when things go wrong. Blamers frequently make statements such as, "Well, I told you so," or more subtly, "That's your problem, not mine." The blamer's remarks make others feel angry, guilty and incompetent.

Most individuals avoid blamers, so the blamer often winds up feeling alone and alienated. Sometimes blamers attract placaters as friends and spouses. The placater is happy to take blame and the blamer is delighted to give it.

The irrelevant person organizes his world around avoidance of serious or disturbing situations. Often the irrelevant person is one who feels that he has little to offer others, except for clowning and good humor.

To avoid emotions, the irrelevant individual keeps things moving at all costs. Like the blamer, the irrelevant is a person who is often seen as a "fair weather" friend.

In conversations, an irrelevant person is often adept at changing the topic or "misunderstanding" the point. The irrelevant style makes others feel annoyed and confused. At times, the irrelevant person is seen as entertaining, but when deeper relationships are required, the irrelevant finds himself alone and isolated.

The superreasonable person organizes his life around facts, words, and assuming an "objective" attitude. The superreasonable person often avoids taking emotional risks or self-expression by maintaining a logical approach to all situations.

Emotional expression implies weakness to the superreasonable. Therefore, all of his energies are spent on maintaining a cool, detached appearance.

Typical statements of the superreasonable include "It appears that" or "In view of the information that one has."

Superreasonables often talk in the third person. The superreasonable style makes others feel angry, bored and impatient. Inwardly, the superreasonable person often feels alone, empty or left out.

Examine your own communication style. If you recognize yourself in one or several of these patterns, at back and take a self-inventory.

Ask yourself: (1) In what kinds of situations do I respond as a placater, blamer, irrelevant, or superreasonable? (2) How does my behavior affect me and others around me? (3) What do I really want to communicate at these times? (4) How can I start now to change my communication style to get what I want?

Most persons find that they desire acceptance, appreciation, and recognition of their feelings and viewpoints by others. If this is what you want, then try these tips to good communication.

(1) Approach situations with the knowledge that you can only influence, not control the other persons' reactions. It takes two people to argue or settle a dispute. You can only control your part in a discussion.

(2) Use "I" statements when you are talking about your own feelings and ideas. Use the word "you" when you are referring to other individuals.

(3) Make your statements specific to the situation, instead of bringing out a "laundry list" of past grievances. For example, it's generally more effective to say "I am displeased because you have not cleaned your room," than adding the statement, "and you never do what you're supposed to do!"

(4) Make your questions true questions, not hidden comments or criticisms.

(5) Try to listen to the other persons point of view instead of utilizing his talking time for forming your next response.

(6) Give yourself permission to be human. Don't be afraid to be angry, assertive, and to make mistakes. It's easier to be accepting of others when you can accept your own humanity.

(7) When you find yourself falling back into the old ineffective style, take time to mentally analyze a recent nonproductive interaction. Be patient with yourself and try to learn what happened so that your next encounter will be more rewarding.

If you would like further information concerning effective communication skills, or general information on the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center, call 1-803-1132 (toll free).

The Gulf Coast Mental Health Center is here to serve the needs of the citizens of Hancock County.

GOOD YEAR FOR STRAWBERRIES-Henry Pullizzano, who has been growing strawberries for more than 30 years in Bay St. Louis displays over a handful on each bush this season. Pullizzano plants the berries in November, purchases them in his hometown of Hammond, La. where he said he helped his father as a youngster grow strawberries. When he first came to Bay St. Louis, his patch was at the corner of Necaise and Ullman Avenue but now is behind his residence on US-90 West. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas)

SSC site of U.S. Championship Weightlifting meet in August

By RICH ADAMS
The Senior National Weightlift Meet, a prestigious event billed as the U.S. Championships, will be conducted at St. Stanislaus High School in August, according to SSC weightlifting coach Brother Bennett.

The August 18 and 19 event will feature "elite" weightlifters, the top five or 10 percent of the best weightlifters in the country, Brother Bennett said.

The meet will be nationally televised by the National Broadcasting Company, and will also feature the "Mr. Western Hemisphere" physique contest.

"This is the biggest thing to hit Bay St. Louis since Hurricane Camille, 10 years to the day since it happened," Brother Bennett said.

"All the lifters are 'elite' lifters, comparable with a black belt in karate or a PhD degree in education," he continued.

The Senior Nationals are only outclassed by the World Meet," he added.

According to Brother Bennett, the Brother Joseph gymnasium at SSC was chosen after the Mississippi State Power Meet was conducted there in February.

Three international judges, John Petit, Jim Taylor, and Dr. Conrad Cotter, were instrumental in moving the Senior Nationals from St. Louis, Mo. to Bay St. Louis. "Dr. Cotter, the AAU national executive secretary, was instrumental in obtaining the bid for SSC," Brother Bennett said.

The most instrumental in bringing the event here, and perhaps the co-host of this event, was Jim Taylor. This is possible mostly to his bargaining at the voting table...he was bound and determined to have the meet at St. Stanislaus," he added.

"He was impressed with the professional manner of the state meet in February...he also liked the good organization, the red carpet treatment of officials, and the Bay St. Louis hospitality," Bennett added.

Bennett said lifters from all across the country will attend the meet, which was held in Los Angeles, California in 1978.

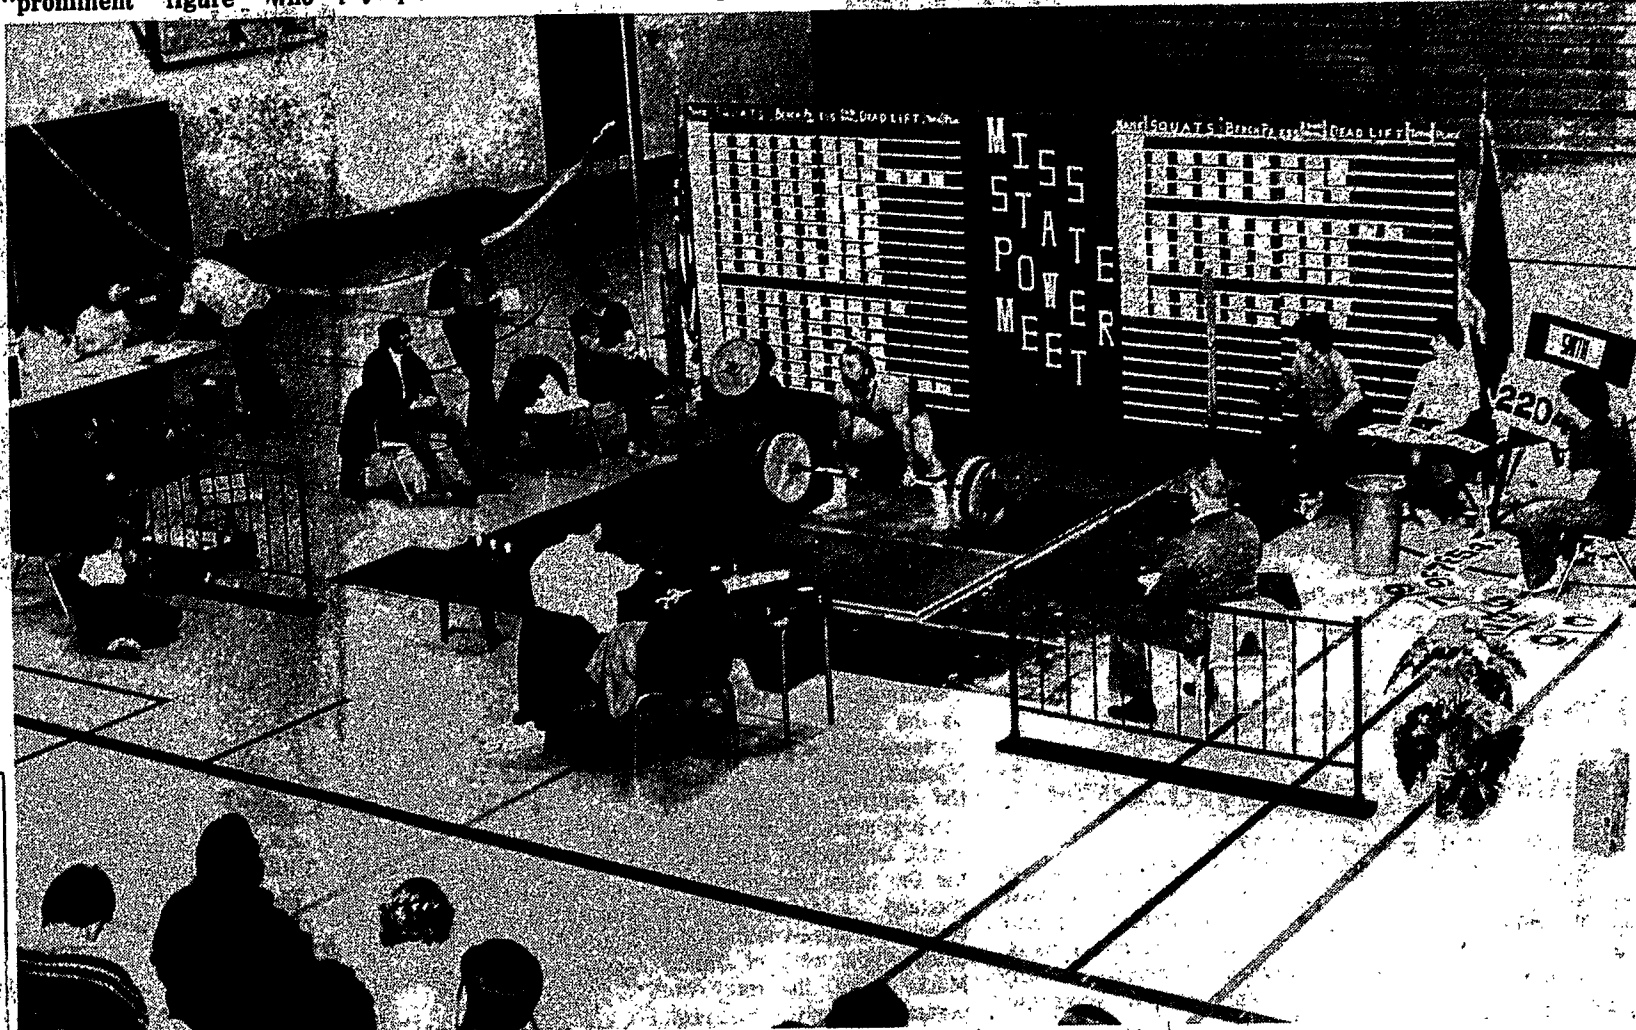

"The officials hesitated at first about bringing the meet to a small town like Bay St. Louis, but we assured them we had adequate accommodations," Bennett said. Bay St. Louis native Joseph "Doc" Rhodes, who holds all state records in three weight groups and is a world record holder, will participate in the event.

The Mr. Western Hemisphere contest is another first in the Senior National competition, and Bennett said officials are negotiating with a "prominent figure" who sponsors the Mr. America contest" to handle the physique event.

Bennett said he is looking forward to having world class competition in the city, adding that the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and support "in every way" of the Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett have pledged their support.

Hertzog to compete in Teenage Nationals

Alvarez Hertzog

By RICH ADAMS
Alvarez Hertzog, a student and weightlifter at St. Stanislaus High School, will compete in the Teenage National Weightlift Meet in Ft. Worth, Texas tomorrow and Saturday, according to SSC Weightlift Coach Brother Bennett.

Bennett expressed a desire to take Hertzog to the AAU sanctioned meet in Texas following the Mississippi State Weightlift Meet at SSC in February, depending on improvement in his lifting ability.

"Alvarez lifted a 400-pound plus squat Monday, and I expect him to do that or better in the Texas meet," Bennett said Tuesday.

"The competition is composed of the best teenage weightlifters in the country. It is a very selective meet...qualifying totals are very high," he continued.

"We would love for him to come home with the first place trophy, and we feel this is possible, but we will be happy if he just places," Bennett added.

"I do not know what his possibilities will be to win...he has just been lifting for less than a year, while some of his competition has been lifting for over four years," he said. Bennett said the competition is broken into age categories, and further into weight classes.

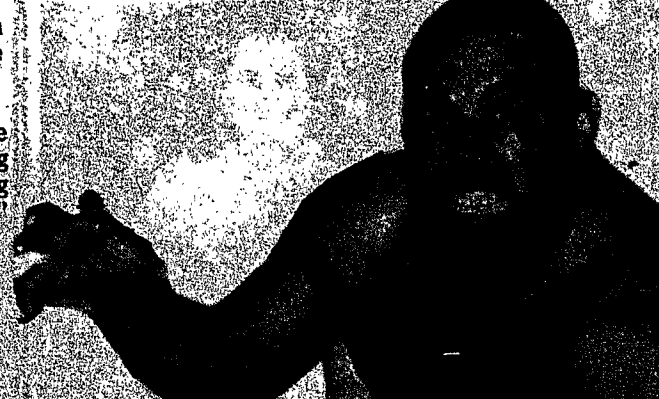

Hertzog will lift in the 145 pound weight class.

The event will take place at Texas Christian University in Ft. Worth Friday and Saturday.

Championship wrestling comes to HNC

Oki Shakira will also go against Tom Shaft in a bout at the gym.

News Brief

COMPUTER AIDS

Computers are often viewed as the tools of science and business, but a University of Mississippi professor has used the electronic brain to aid literary scholars around the world. Dr. Ronald Bartlett of the Ole Miss Department of Modern Languages has compiled a three-volume word index of the work of Rainer Maria Rilke, the most important modern German poet. Scholars can use the index in analyzing Rilke's lyric poetry. "The computer alone can provide the comprehensive overview necessary for absolute and accurate literary analysis and interpretation," said Dr. Bartlett. Without the computer, it would have taken Dr. Bartlett more than 50 years to compile his index.

Spring and summer are the seasons when much important outdoor work must be done. It is also the time when many underground cables are cut and damaged.

In case of fire, serious illness of some other emergency, a cut or damaged cable can be a serious problem or at best it can be very inconvenient to telephone subscribers. This problem can be avoided by calling 1-888-8356 and assistance will be provided in locating underground cables before digging is begun and before damage is done.

We put a lot of telephone cables underground. This protects the cables and helps keep Mississippi beautiful. If you're a homeowner, contractor, or machine owner planning to dig, call our cable locating service first.

A cable cut during digging can disrupt telephone service for hundreds of customers - including you. But if you call us before you dig, we'll send someone out to check for buried cable and mark its location for you. So you can avoid the cable when you dig.

The service is available to everyone at no charge (48-hour notice requested). You'll find the Buried Cable Information number listed in the Call Guide section of your telephone directory.

Call us before you dig, help keep your - and your neighbors' - telephone service working.

If you ever feel that nobody loves you, reach out and touch someone you love with a long distance call. It can do wonders for your morale!

And it won't cost much, either. If you dial it yourself, the One-Plus way, during night and weekend discount periods. Check the Call Guide of your directory for details. Then reach out and touch someone.

BEEF PRICE RESISTANCE

A public opinion study of consumer reactions to rising beef prices had scarcely come off the press before consumers in several key cities of the United States called for beefless Wednesdays reflecting a mood predicted by the consumer survey.

The Chicago based survey consisted of telephone interviews of a sampling of 500 men and women throughout the nation the last week of February, phone interviews with 338 women and men in the Chicago metropolitan area earlier in February, and interviews of 200 principally women shoppers in Chicago and Milwaukee during the same period.

The polls were sponsored by the American Farm Bureau Federation, the Beef Industry Council, the National Livestock and Meat Board, and the National Cattlemen's Association to apprise the livestock industry of consumer attitudes regarding beef prices.

And although a bottom line of the report indicated a willingness to see government keep hands off and let supply and demand operate freely, still a militancy was clearly expressed toward more drastic means of tilting the scales of the side of consumers, even if it hurt farmers and ranchers.

Then, late last week it happened. Consumers opted against plowshares in favor of swords in the battle of the check-out line. In what may be the beginning of organized consumer resistance to rising beef prices, Bruce Ratner, commissioner of the New York City department of consumer affairs, announced last Thursday a "Beefless Wednesday" campaign in that city. At a press conference Ratner urged consumers to abstain from eating beef one day a week. He immediately was supported in his plea by municipal consumer affairs spokesmen from adjacent suburban area and state level consumer affairs officials for the states of New York and New Jersey.

As a part of the campaign, petitions reportedly will be circulated calling on President Carter to join the beefless Wednesday effort and to implement a federal farm price to control food costs and to investigate beef pricing policies.

The New York based

Class officers are unable to locate Walter Curry, Sylvia Hinkkanen, Roy Knight, Camille Lambert, Carol Miller, John Netto, LaJode Raboteau, Clark Ross, Sarah Scruggs, Rose Smith, Cheryl Ward and Ranier Winkelman.

Also, class members must return their reunion form by May 1 in order to attend.

New York's Ratner also said that Frederick Richmond, D-N.Y., was to begin a fact-finding mission in Colorado last Thursday to examine beef production costs.

The recently completed public opinion study earlier referred to was conducted by Leo Shapiro Associates and reported that more than a half, or 54 percent of the persons polled thought a consumer boycott would lower the prices of beef.

An earlier study in July, 1978, by the same opinion polling firm indicated an even higher percentage, or 68 percent, who favored consumer boycotts as a way to reduce food prices.

The latest survey also revealed that 71 percent of these polled said they were cutting back on the amount of beef purchased, while 54 percent acknowledged that they were substituting cheaper cuts of beef for the more expensive ones, and 64 percent said they are substituting other kinds of food for beef.

Among the major meats respondents gave the most noticeable nod toward beef as a taste favorite, and ranked beef and chicken about equal for their contribution to human health.

Frances Walker displays Alaskan artifacts

Lecturer discusses Alaskan culture

By JOE PILEY
Mrs. Frances Walker presented a slide and lecture program on Indian and Eskimo cultures Wednesday as a feature of the City-County Library's National Library Week celebration.

Gathering in the Crawford Memorial Room for the program were students, library patrons and guests from neighboring cities.

A display of artifacts was explained and identified by Mrs. Walker, whose hobby of gem, mineral and fossil collecting has taken her to remote areas of Alaska, including the villages of Kat-brie, Tanana, Bethel and areas on the date-line between Russia and the United States.

In explaining the vastness of Alaska, Mrs. Walker pointed to a map and said: "Alaska was purchased for two cents per acre from Russia. Two-thirds of the area is covered with permafrost. It is by far our largest state. Three states could be placed in Alaska - and that includes Texas."

Of the range of temperature, Mrs. Walker said: "Bethel in winter has cold that registers minus seventy-eight degrees and the summer heat soars to one hundred degrees."

Of the people living in Alaska she said: "The Eskimo has a loving, kind and trusting disposition. Feelings are easily hurt. And they are most generous."

Some of the artifacts on display dated before the birth of Christ, dated as late as 1,200 A.D.

Among items on display were carving tools made of jade and deer's antlers; a sewing kit including sinew thread made from animal muscle; fishing equipment; oil lamps; sun glasses; jewelry; dancing gloves; ice picks; and objects used by the "medicine man."

Of uncommon interest was a display of death masks which were made by stretching animal skin over the face of the dead person.

When the skin dries it is removed and becomes a likeness or a resemblance of the deceased.

A method of harpoon fishing was also demonstrated. In displaying a disc of a blue whale, the lecturer said the whale is the largest animal in the world reaching a weight of 190 tons and length up to 90 feet.

Color slides depicted dog teams at work, the facilities of the Indian Affairs hospitals, groups of children and adults, and a helicopter used in rescue missions.

Many artifacts and fossils were placed in the library display case and will remain on exhibit throughout the month of April.

'Modern Minutemen' take to the sea; Bay National Guard trains in Mobile

By RICH ADAMS
The Bay St. Louis unit of the National Guard recently travelled to Mobile, Ala., and participated in a weekend 'Lighter Over-The-Shore' (LOTS) training exercise on the Mobile Bay.

The unit, a detachment of the 135th Transportation Company in Ocean Springs, utilized Light Amphibian Resupply Cargo vehicles (LARC V) in the operation. The Bay St. Louis unit, along with the Ocean Springs headquarters, is the only LARC V unit in the state and one of two such outfits in the nation.

The Guard arrived at the site in Mobile Saturday morning and proceeded to drive their LARC V's into the bay, and met a U.S. Army Reserve ship, the General William J. Sutton, which was docked at a nearby pier.

Stevedores aboard the Sutton lifted cargo over the side and down to the LARC V's which transported it to the shore where the LARC V's originally embarked.

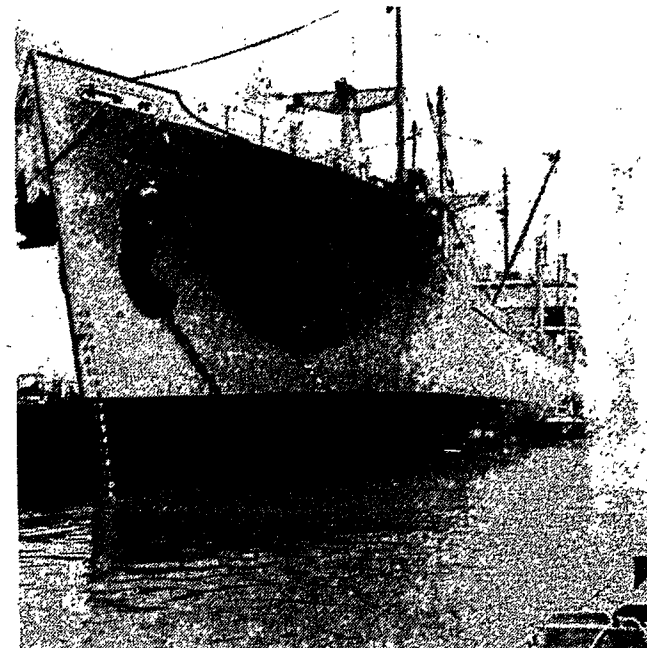

Guardsmen from the 134th Medium Trucking Company of Lucedale then transported the cargo over land to the ship, where the loads were re-deposited on the ship.

The Bay unit's newly appointed commanding officer, First Lieutenant Virgil J. Rutledge Jr., called the operation a 'success.'

The 50 members of the Bay outfit returned to Bay St. Louis Sunday afternoon following conclusion of the operation.

Gnomes and fairies who hide Easter eggs at Buccanneer Park no match for Seniors

Happenings

RAYST LOUIS

The Easter egg hunt and picnic lunch at Buccanneer State Park in Waveland Friday, April 6th, found some 100 Seniors out celebrating the beautiful Spring Season and ushering in the new life span of another year.

Hunting all of the eggs really proved that the person or rabbit or whatever sprite is in charge of concealing all of those colored eggs, did a very fine job.

After all of the treasure was found, the best egg hunters turned out to be Julia Leddy, 56 eggs; Thelma White, 55 eggs; and Pere Cabibi, 40 eggs.

Finding the beautiful ceramic eggs were Louise Banks and Lucille Reese.

All of these fine hunters were awarded prizes for their efforts.

Then, of course, the really lucky four-leaf clover finders will, I am sure, be receiving their awards all year.

Then for about an hour everyone was transported in imagination to "Merry Old England" and shared in a fine reverie of "The Morris Dancers" tripping lightly over the moors.

Stark reality returned us home again, but all of the Seniors thank Flip Johnson and the members of his fine country-western band, a local favorite, who carried everyone away on this delightful afternoon.

With all of the fine folk music tunes, they covered all requests and then some.

SOCIAL HOUR

In spite of this being the very busy time of "Holy Week" with all of its activity, 95 members of "The Grey Power", participated in the games session Monday.

Winners for the day were Catherine Gallivan, Hazel Buckley, Adeline Tritt, Georgiana Diboll, Mayme Holland, Carmelita Sauder, Cecile Gallivan, Ethel Dorman, Zenobia Gilbert, and Vivian Collier.

Door-prize donated by the Texas Chuckwagon Restaurant was won by Mary Harris of Pearlinton.

Participating merchants this month are Linda's Fabric Shoppe, TG&Y, Georgetown, Mumme's Florist, all from Waveland; The Eatery, Evergreen Nursery, Sea Coast Echo, all from Bay St. Louis; and the K&B Drug Store in Long Beach.

Once again our heartfelt thanks are not enough for all of their thoughtfulness.

RSVP Volunteers: Annie Sulzer, Esther Cuevas, Joanne Taconi, Agnes Inch, Ethel Dorman, Julia Leddy, Thelma White, Evelyn Spence, Maggie Dambrino, Lucy Bradt, Bernice Scaffidi, Edith Chevis, Nina Garner, Katherine Gallivan, Cecile Gallivan, Les Gallivan, Roland Gallivan, Frank Gerard and honorary RSVP member Audrey Curet get my personal thanks for helping to make the April Social Hour a huge success.

BREAKFAST

The Seniors Choir will sponsor a breakfast in the dining room of our center on Old Spanish Trail Thursday, April 19th, from 7:30 to 9 a.m. Menu includes corn beef hash, with choice of poached or scrambled eggs, biscuits with butter and jelly, and coffee.

Prices are: all seniors 60 or over, $1; all others $1.25 per person.

Money received from this project will go toward buying choir robes. These RSVP Volunteers give many, many hours of their time and a lot of unselfish effort to help bring happiness to shut-ins in nursing homes, churches, and many other places.

So come on everyone of Hancock County, skip breakfast at home this one morning.

Come on down if you are a Senior and enjoy the companionship of your friends.

If you are not a Senior, come on down and take this opportunity to meet some fine and extra-special neighbors.

They deserve your support to complete your project and you really will enjoy some fine food at a very reasonable price.

Most of all, you deserve that wonderful feeling you'll get down inside.

RSVP

Director Theresa James reminds all RSVP Volunteers that the Voluntary Action Fair will be held in Jackson, Thursday, April 26 from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

The Governor's Office of Volunteer Services is sponsoring the event.

Volunteers from all over the State will be nominated for their services. Unfortunately, RSVP can only furnish transportation for the singers and teachers who will be displaying the work being taught in the classes at the Center.

Theresa hopes that all other Volunteers will pool their resources and share the cost of driving.

EXCURSION

A seven day trip through the New England States is being planned for some time in May.

If you are interested in taking this tour, please contact Jim Hoda at 467-9292.

FUNDING

The Senior Citizens Center, Old Spanish Trail, Bay St. Louis, and its programs are partially funded by the State Department of Public Welfare, Hancock County Board of Supervisors, the cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland, and the Hancock County Chapter of the United Way.

WAVELAND

The Senior Citizens Association Inc. of Waveland held its regular monthly meeting Monday, April 9 at 10 a.m. in the Civic Center on Coleman Avenue.

President Pere Cabibi welcomed all new members and visitors.

The Senior Citizens Day at the Library Thursday, April 5th, during National Library Week was a huge success.

Ms. Cabibi reminded everyone to think of planning for the next project in April, 1980.

Vice President Dudley McCall will preside at the May 14 meeting. A casserole luncheon will follow the Monday June 11 meeting.

Winners of door prizes were Mary Gerard and Al Parretti.

AARP

The American Association of Retired Persons, Hancock County Chapter No. 1114, will hold its regular meeting Monday, April 16 at 10 a.m. A report will be made on the NASA Tour.

All Seniors of Hancock County are invited to attend the coffee and biscuits session every Tuesday from 9:30 to 11 a.m. at the Civic Center, Coleman Avenue.

SPECIAL ORCHID

I trust that you will indulge me in a special moment of my own. Monday, April 9 was my 35th Wedding Anniversary.

As most of you know my wife Ginger, she will need no special introduction here.

Not being 60, she cannot volunteer her time through RSVP, and so unlike other Volunteers, never receives a mention from anyone.

She does all my typing, and if one of my lovely voiced ladies is indisposed and cannot make her telephone calls, Ginger's right there.

Those are among all the many things she does for me and others in the community.

So Ginger, on this our anniversary, these are my orchids to you.

CLOSING

In this Holy Week in the Christian Believing World, the human emotions are brought to the lowest depths of the valley of death, on what is known as Good Friday and to the highest mountain of exaltation as the first rays of the bright morning Star break through the darkness of the black velvet hopelessness of the night before.

The Resurrection Morning, known as Easter Sunday, provides a lesson to be learned.

If we bury our hates in every black night of desperation, and whisper inaudibly I Forgive, every bright sunny morning a new life is resurrected in Love.

This is what His Life was all about, Let us Forget.

Is that another one?

Student Beneficiaries should report plans

About 870,000 young men and women between 18 and 22 who will be returning to their studies as full-time students late this month or next have one thing in common—they all receive social security benefits. A social security spokesperson said recently:

be paid to unmarried full-time students when one of their parents receives social security retirement or disability benefits or when a parent dies after working long enough under social security.

Most of these men and women have been receiving benefits throughout their summer vacation because they planned to return to full-time school attendance this fall. But many of them, for one reason or another, may not return to school when the fall term begins.

If this happens, the ex-student should notify social security right away so that benefit checks can be stopped. If checks are not stopped quickly enough, the representative said, the student may have to repay the money he or she received incorrectly.

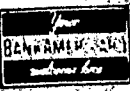

Another group of young people, whose benefits were stopped last spring because they did not plan to continue in school, can have their benefits started again if they do return to full-time attendance while they are under 22 and unmarried.

But, benefits are not restarted automatically. The student must contact social security and reapply.
